

CRIMINAL LAW

for First-Responders and 911 Dispatchers

It is critical that those who are answering and dispatching law enforcement related calls have knowledge of criminal law. For instance, there is a significant difference between a robbery and a burglary or a threat and an assault, and soon – how this initial information is gathered and distributed is critical to a proper law enforcement response. This course is designed to educate civilian dispatchers on the critical elements of the various crimes that are commonly reported, making the overall police response more efficient and proper for the nature of the call.

Some of the topics covered:

- Violent Crimes
- Sexual Related Crimes
- Larcenies
- Retail related crime
